REMEMBER: Taking PrEP or PEP to prevent HIV does not protect you from other STIs.

PrEP can help you take control of your sexual health

Taking PrEP as prescribed can protect you from HIV. If you answer “yes” to any of these questions, PrEP may be right for you:

- Do you use condoms sometimes or not at all?
- Is your sexual partner(s) HIV-positive or an unknown status?
- Have you been on PrEP in the past year?
- Have you been treated recently for a sexually transmitted infection (STI)?
- Are you trying to get pregnant with an HIV-positive partner?
- Do you and/or your sex partner(s) use or inject drugs?
- Do you and/or your sex partner(s) exchange sex for money, housing, drugs or other needs?
- Has your partner threatened or forced you to have sex against your will?
- Bring this brochure with you to your doctor to discuss PrEP.

PEP can help protect you after exposure to HIV

Starting PEP within 72 hours after possible HIV exposure from sex or sharing needles can protect you from HIV. PEP pills are taken for 28 days after a known or suspected exposure. If you answer “yes” to any of these questions, PEP may be right for you:

- Did you have sex without using a condom or did a condom break when you were having sex with someone who is HIV-positive or whose HIV status you don’t know?
- Were you forced into sex against your will?
- Did you share injection drug equipment, like a syringe or needle?

* If you think you were exposed to HIV, call the NYC PEP hotline at (844) 2-PEPNYC (844-373-7692) or go immediately to a clinic or emergency room and ask for PEP.

PrEP and PEP are 100% covered for Amida Care members. Contact your doctor or Amida Care Member Services (1-800-556-0689, TTY 711) if you have questions about taking PrEP or PEP.
